

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE
The Secretary of Commerce
Washington, D.C. 20230

January 31, 2019

The Honorable Ron Johnson
Chairman, Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs
United States Senate
Washington, DC 20510

Dear Mr. Chairman:

Thank you for your letter on behalf of the Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs (Committee) requesting additional information from the Department of Commerce regarding the Section 232 product exclusion request process. I appreciate this opportunity to provide the Committee with information on this important topic.

As of December 10, 2018, the Department had received more than 62,000 steel and aluminum exclusion requests (including resubmissions) and has received more than 54,000 objections to exclusion requests. The Department has diligently worked to develop its exclusion process to ensure that tariffs protect our national security while also minimizing undue impacts on downstream American industries. Two specific components within the Department have worked closely in these efforts – the Bureau of Industry and Security (BIS) and the International Trade Administration (ITA). BIS is the lead agency deciding steel and aluminum tariff exclusion requests and ITA is analyzing requests with objections to determine whether domestic production capacity can support the product needs of exclusion requesters.

The Department began issuing its product exclusion decisions on June 20, 2018 and had posted more than 20,177 decisions as of December 17, 2018. Of those 20,177 decisions, 14,727 granted exclusions and 5,450 denied exclusions. More than 5,000 of the denials were due to incorrect Harmonized Tariff Schedule (HTSUS) of the United States product classifications. In addition, on September 11, 2018, the Department published an interim final rule amending its March 2018 product exclusion regulation which established procedures for rebuttals and surrebuttals. The new procedures were effective upon publication. The revised procedures will further ensure a well-informed review process.

In your letter, you requested information on four categories:

1. Data of market prices for steel and aluminum (2008-2018)

The Department tracks publicly available steel and aluminum price data obtained from the Steel Benchmarker and the London Metal Exchange. Attached is pricing information the Department has downloaded from these sources. The Steel Benchmarker data includes both U.S. domestic and international steel prices. The London Metal Exchange data is only available for international spot market aluminum prices.

2. Data on steel and aluminum tariffs

The Department, including product experts from ITA, are evaluating many factors, including U.S. producers' representations about their ability to produce specific products, as part of the review process when objections are received. The rebuttal process established in the September 11, 2018 Federal Register notice provides an additional way for the Department to receive input to help identify these types of trends that the Department agrees should be taken into account for an efficient and effective exclusion process.

I have also directed the Department economists to regularly review the impacts of the steel and aluminum duties and quantitative limitations, including on downstream sectors. I will present this information to President for his consideration as appropriate. The Department also regularly reviews statistical data from steel and aluminum trade associations to monitor industry activity, such as production levels and capacity utilization rates.

3. Factors the Department considers in evaluating tariff exclusion requests

As set forth in the Proclamations and the May and September 2018 Federal Register notices establishing and revising the exclusion process, the purpose of the exclusion process is to grant exclusions for the imports of goods currently unavailable in the United States in sufficient quantity or satisfactory quality, or for other national security considerations. The Department is reviewing each exclusion request in accordance with these factors as established in the September 11, 2018 Federal Register notice, which included definitions for "not produced in the United States in a sufficient and reasonable available amount," "not produced in the United States in a satisfactory quality," and "for specific national security considerations." The Department is also expediting the granting of properly filed exclusion requests that receive no objections and present no national security concerns.

4. Information about the Department's process for evaluating tariff exclusion requests

Requests that receive no objections are referred to Customs and Border Protection (CBP) to confirm the HTSUS classification of the product. If CBP confirms the HTSUS classification, the exclusion is granted. If CBP determines the HTSUS classification is incorrect, the exclusion is denied. Requesters can obtain the correct HTSUS classification from CBP and resubmit their requests. Requests that receive objections are subject to the rebuttal/surrebuttal process. ITA reviews those requests and provides BIS its recommendations. The Deputy Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Export Administration and the Director of the Office of Strategic Industries and Economic Security within BIS have been the decision-makers on all requests to date, which has added further consistency to the standard of review. The Department considers the decisions on exclusions to be final agency actions subject to the Administrative Procedure Act review.

The table below is the most recent data provided monthly to the Senate Appropriations Subcommittee on Commerce, Justice, Science and Related Agencies.

The Department anticipates issuing its first decisions on requests that received rebuttals and surrebuttals soon, now that the lapse in appropriations has ended. No exclusion requests were processed during the lapse.

Thank you again for your attention to these important issues. If you have further concerns or questions, please have your staff contact Michael Platt, Jr., Assistant Secretary for Legislative and Intergovernmental Affairs, at [REDACTED].

Sincerely,

Wilbur Ross
